

A Visit to the Putterham Library

The Putterham Library in Brookline is at 959 West Roxbury Parkway.

I can go there with a grownup.

A library has all kinds of books.

I can look at the books, and if I want to, I can take some home.

In the Children's room, there are lots of books that kids might like.

To get to the Children's room, just walk right past the front desk.

I can take books off the shelves to look at.

In the Children's room, kids and grownups might be talking or making noise.

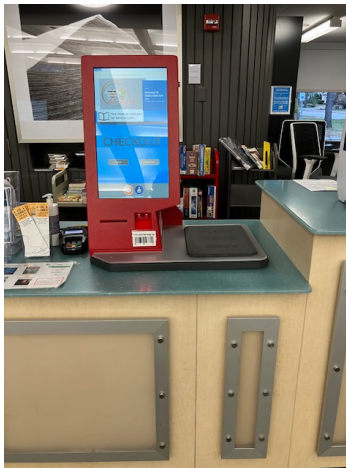

If it is too noisy for me in the Children's room, I can take my book to a quieter part of the library to look at it.

If I'm finished with a book, my grown up can help me put it away at the re-shelving station.

If I want to bring books home, my grownup and I will bring them to the front desk. We might wait in a line for the library worker to be ready. When it is our turn, we can give the library worker our books. The library worker will check them out for us and give them right back.

There is also a self-checkout machine at the front desk. My grownup can help me check out books there if I want!

Then we will take our books home. We will bring them back to the library another day.

The library is a great place to visit!
